GERUNDIO o INFINITIVO

Verb + -ing or verb + to · ¿doing o to do?

Nivel B1

1 Verbo + -ING

- I enjoy reading. (Disfruto leyendo.)

2 Verbo + TO

4 -ING como sujeto

- Español: infinitivo → inglés: -ing

5 LIKE, LOVE, HATE

- like / love / hate + -ing (o to)
- I love dancing. = I love to dance.
- would like + to: I'd like to go.

7 Error común

✗ I enjoy to play football.

enjoy + -ing, nunca to

6 Truco

Explicación · Explanation

Lee cada recuadro despacio. Primero en español, luego en inglés. Read each box slowly: first in Spanish, then in English.

¿Qué es? · What is it?

Cuando en una frase hay dos verbos seguidos, el primero «manda» sobre la forma del segundo. Unos verbos piden -ing (I enjoy dancing) y otros piden to + infinitivo (I want to dance). En español casi siempre usamos el infinitivo («disfruto bailando», «quiero bailar»), así que en inglés hay que aprender qué pide cada verbo. Además, detrás de una preposición y como sujeto se usa siempre -ing.

When two verbs go together, the first one decides the form of the second: -ing (enjoy dancing) or to + infinitive (want to dance).

verbo + verbo-ing

verbo + to + infinitivo

Truco: ¿hacia delante o la acción? · Memory trick

Muchos verbos con to miran hacia el futuro: want, hope, plan, decide, promise, would like (algo que aún no ha pasado). Muchos verbos con -ing hablan de la actividad en sí: enjoy, finish, avoid, mind, keep. No es una regla perfecta, ¡pero ayuda! Y detrás de preposición… siempre -ing.

1 · Verbos + -ING · Verbs + -ing

Estos verbos van seguidos de -ing: enjoy (disfrutar), finish (terminar), avoid (evitar), mind (importar), suggest (sugerir), keep (seguir, no parar de), miss (echar de menos), practise (practicar), imagine, consider, can't stand (no soportar). ¡Detrás de ellos nunca va ~~to~~!

These verbs are followed by -ing: enjoy, finish, avoid, mind, suggest, keep, miss, practise, imagine, consider, can't stand.

enjoy / finish / avoid / mind… + verbo-ing

I really enjoy cooking for my friends.
→ Disfruto mucho cocinando para mis amigos.

Have you finished doing your homework?
→ ¿Has terminado de hacer los deberes?

She avoids eating sugar during the week.
→ Evita comer azúcar entre semana.

2 · Verbos + TO · Verbs + to + infinitive

🇪🇸 Estos verbos van seguidos de to + infinitivo: want (querer), decide (decidir), hope (esperar, desear), need (necesitar), plan (planear), learn (aprender), promise (prometer), agree (acordar), refuse (negarse), forget (olvidarse de), try (intentar), would like (me gustaría). Muchos miran hacia el futuro: algo que todavía no ha pasado.

🇬🇧 These verbs take to + infinitive: want, decide, hope, need, plan, learn, promise, agree, refuse, forget, try, would like.

want / decide / hope / need… + to + infinitivo

🏨 We decided to book a cheaper hotel.
→ Decidimos reservar un hotel más barato.

👋 I hope to see you again soon!
→ ¡Espero volver a verte pronto!

🚗 He's learning to drive.
→ Está aprendiendo a conducir.

Aprende cada verbo con su pareja: enjoy doing, want to do. ¡Como si fuera una sola palabra!

Learn each verb with its pattern: enjoy doing, want to do.

3 · Preposición + -ING · Preposition + -ing

Detrás de cualquier preposición (in, on, at, of, about, for, with, without, before, after, by, instead of) el verbo va siempre en -ing. Aquí el español usa infinitivo («antes de salir», «gracias por venir»), y por eso el error típico es ~~before to leave~~. Ojo con look forward to: ¡ese to es preposición!

After any preposition use -ing: before leaving, thanks for coming, good at drawing. Careful: look forward to + -ing.

preposición + verbo-ing

🎉 Thanks for coming to my party!
→ ¡Gracias por venir a mi fiesta!

🗾 I'm interested in learning Japanese.
→ Me interesa aprender japonés.

🧼 Wash your hands before eating.
→ Lávate las manos antes de comer.

4 · -ING como sujeto · -ing as the subject

Cuando una actividad es el sujeto de la frase, en inglés usamos -ing (y el verbo va en singular). En español usamos el infinitivo: «Nadar es sano» → Swimming is healthy. ¡No digas ~~Swim is healthy~~!

When an activity is the subject, use -ing: Swimming is healthy. Reading helps you relax.

Verbo-ing + is / makes / helps...

🏊 Swimming is good for your back.
→ Nadar es bueno para la espalda.

🗣️ Learning a language takes time.
→ Aprender un idioma lleva tiempo.

⏰ Getting up early is really hard for me.
→ Madrugar me cuesta muchísimo.

5 · LIKE, LOVE, HATE · like, love, hate, prefer

Like, love, hate y prefer pueden ir con -ing o con to casi sin diferencia: I love dancing = I love to dance. Para gustos generales, -ing es lo más natural. ¡Pero ojo con would like / would love! Esas van siempre con to: I'd like to go (me gustaría ir).

like, love, hate, prefer + -ing or to (same meaning). would like / would love + to only.

like / love / hate + -ing (o to)

would like / would love + to + infinitivo

I love going to concerts with my friends.
→ Me encanta ir a conciertos con mis amigos.

She hates getting up early on Mondays.
→ Odia levantarse temprano los lunes.

Would you like to come for dinner on Friday?
→ ¿Te gustaría venir a cenar el viernes?

The preposition is not always the same as in Spanish.

STOP y REMEMBER · Two verbs that change meaning

Unos pocos verbos admiten las dos formas, pero cambian de significado. Los dos más útiles son stop y remember:

A few verbs take both forms with a different meaning: stop and remember.

+ -ING

- I stopped smoking. (Dejé de fumar.)
- I remember meeting her. (Recuerdo haberla conocido.)

+ TO

Why I started climbing

I'm Lucía, and last year I decided to try something new. I was tired of spending every evening on the sofa, and I wanted to meet new people. A friend suggested going to a climbing wall near my flat, so I agreed to go with her one Friday.

At first I was terrible! I'm afraid of falling, and I couldn't stop looking down. But the instructors kept encouraging me, and I decided to go back every week. Climbing is hard, but I really enjoy solving each wall like a puzzle.

Now I can't imagine living without it. Climbing has helped me feel stronger and more confident. Next summer, I'm hoping to climb outdoors in the Picos de Europa. I'm really looking forward to trying it!
