PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS

Nivel B2

Present perfect continuous · llevo + tiempo + -ando

Usamos HAVE BEEN + -ING para acciones que empezaron en el pasado y siguen o acaban de parar.

1 Forma

I / you / we / they	have been + -ing
he / she / it	has been + -ing

Contracciones: I've been · she's been. ¡Been no cambia nunca!

2 Uso 1: duración

- Empezó en el pasado y sigue ahora.
- I've been waiting for an hour. (Llevo una hora esperando.)
- How long have you been living here?

3 Uso 2: resultado visible

- Acaba de parar y se nota ahora.
- You're wet! — I've been running. (He estado corriendo.)
- Últimamente: I've been feeling tired lately.

4 Negativa y pregunta

- She hasn't been sleeping well.
- Have you been crying?
- Yes, I have. / No, I haven't.

5 ¿Simple o continuo?

- Continuo → actividad, cuánto tiempo: I've been reading all day.
- Simple → resultado, cuántos: I've read three books.

6 Consejo rápido

- «Llevo + tiempo + -ando» = have been + -ing
- Verbos de estado (know, like, want) → simple: I've known her for years.

7 Error común

✗ I am waiting here for an hour.

✓ I've been waiting here for an hour.

«Llevo una hora...» → have been + -ing

Explicación · Explanation

Lee cada recuadro despacio. Primero en español, luego en inglés. Read each box slowly: first in Spanish, then in English.

¿Qué es? · What is it?

El present perfect continuous (have / has been + -ing) une el pasado con el presente. Lo usamos para una actividad que empezó en el pasado y sigue ahora, o que acaba de terminar y cuyos efectos todavía se notan. En español solemos decirlo con «llevar + tiempo + gerundio» o con el presente: Llevo dos horas estudiando · Estudio inglés desde 2020. ¡En inglés el presente no vale aquí!

The present perfect continuous connects the past and the present. We use it for an activity that started in the past and is still going on, or that has just stopped and we can still see the results.

Sujeto + have / has + been + verbo-ing

Truco del «LLEVAR» · The «llevar» trick

Si en español dirías «llevo / llevas / lleva + tiempo + -ando / -iendo», en inglés casi siempre es have / has been + -ing: Llevo un año ahorrando → I've been saving for a year. Si preguntas «¿Cuánto tiempo llevas…?» → How long have you been…? Pero si la frase cuenta cosas (tres libros, cinco emails) → vuelve al simple.

If in Spanish you'd say «llevo + time + -ando», use have been + -ing. If you count things, use the simple.

1 · Afirmativa · Affirmative

Con I, you, we, they → have been; con he, she, it → has been. Been no cambia nunca y el verbo principal siempre lleva -ing. Al hablar casi siempre contraemos: I've been, she's been, they've been.

I / you / we / they → have been; he / she / it → has been. Been never changes and the main verb always takes -ing. In speech we use short forms.

I / you / we / they + have been + working

he / she / it + has been + working

I've been working on this project since January.
→ Llevo trabajando en este proyecto desde enero.

She's been learning Korean for six months.
→ Lleva seis meses aprendiendo coreano.

We've been saving money for a trip to Japan.
→ Hemos estado ahorrando para un viaje a Japón.

📖 Explicación · Explanation | Nivel B2

2 · Negativa · Negative

not va detrás de have / has: haven't / hasn't been + -ing. ¡Nunca don't ni no! Muy útil con lately / recently (últimamente).

Put not after have / has. Never use don't or no.

I / you / we / they + haven't been + sleeping

he / she / it + hasn't been + sleeping

I haven't been sleeping well lately.
→ Últimamente no estoy durmiendo bien.

He hasn't been feeling well since Friday.
→ No se encuentra bien desde el viernes.

They haven't been answering their phones all morning.
→ Llevan toda la mañana sin coger el teléfono.

3 · Preguntas y respuestas cortas · Questions and short answers

Have / Has va delante del sujeto. Pregunta estrella: How long have you been + -ing...? = ¿Cuánto tiempo llevas...? Respuesta corta: Yes, I have. / No, she hasn't. (sin been).

Have / Has goes before the subject. Key question: How long have you been + -ing...?

Have / Has + sujeto + been + -ing ...?

How long have you been + -ing ...?

How long have you been waiting?
→ ¿Cuánto tiempo llevas esperando?

Has it been raining? The streets are wet.
→ ¿Ha estado lloviendo? Las calles están mojadas.

Have you been crying? — No, I've been cutting onions!
→ ¿Has estado llorando? — ¡No, he estado cortando cebolla!

4 · Uso 1: duración (¿cuánto tiempo?) · Use 1: duration

Para una actividad que empezó en el pasado y todavía continúa. Destacamos cuánto tiempo lleva: for + periodo (for two hours), since + punto de inicio (since 9 o'clock), all day / all morning. En español: llevo... -ando, hace... que o presente + desde hace.

For an activity that started in the past and is still going on. We focus on how long: for + period, since + starting point, all day.

It's been raining since this morning.
→ Está lloviendo desde esta mañana.

I've been looking for a new flat for three months.
→ Hace tres meses que busco piso.

They've been talking on the phone all evening.
→ Llevan toda la tarde hablando por teléfono.

5 · Uso 2: resultado visible · Use 2: visible results

Para una actividad que acaba de terminar (o se ha interrumpido) y cuyos efectos se ven ahora: estás cansado, sucio, mojado, rojo... No importa si la acción está completa: importa la actividad que explica la situación presente.

For an activity that has just stopped and whose results we can see now. The activity explains the present situation.

I'm exhausted. I've been running.
→ Estoy agotado. He estado corriendo.

Your hands are filthy. What have you been doing?
→ Tienes las manos sucísimas. ¿Qué has estado haciendo?

Sorry I'm late. Have you been waiting long?
→ Perdona el retraso. ¿Llevas mucho rato esperando?

Carmen's blog: a new life in Edinburgh

Hi everyone! It's been a while since my last post. I moved to Edinburgh last spring, so I've been living here for about eight months now. I've been working as a nurse at a big hospital since September. I love it, but I've been doing a lot of night shifts lately!

My English has improved a lot. I've been taking classes twice a week, and I've already passed two mock exams for my B2 First. The only problem is the weather: it's been raining non-stop for three days! I've bought two umbrellas this week and I've lost both of them.

My flatmate, Fiona, has been teaching me some Scottish words. She's from Glasgow and we've known each other since my first week here. My parents are coming to visit next month, and I've been planning their trip for weeks.
