¿Qué es? · What is it?

Una participle clause es una oración subordinada sin sujeto y sin conector, construida con un participio: -ing (present participle), participio pasado (-ed o 3.ª columna) o having + participio (perfect participle). Sustituye a oraciones con because, as, when, after, if, so o who / which, y hace el texto más conciso y formal. La regla de oro: el sujeto implícito del participio tiene que ser el mismo que el de la oración principal.

A participle clause has no subject and no conjunction. It replaces clauses with because, when, after, if, so or who / which, making writing concise and formal. Its implied subject must be the subject of the main clause.

As she felt tired, she went home. (neutra)

Feeling tired, + she went home.

1 · -ing: tiempo · Present participle: time

Con -ing el sentido es activo: el sujeto hace la acción. Expresa una acción simultánea (= while, as) o inmediatamente anterior (= when, as soon as) a la principal. En español solemos usar al + infinitivo o un gerundio: Al abrir la puerta… / Paseando por…

-ing = active meaning. It expresses a simultaneous action (= while) or one immediately before the main action (= when, as soon as).

Verbo-ing + …, + sujeto + verbo principal

Opening the report, the director noticed a serious error.
→ Al abrir el informe, la directora detectó un error grave.

Walking through the old town, we came across a small bookshop.
→ Paseando por el casco antiguo, nos topamos con una pequeña librería.

Hearing the fire alarm, the staff left the building immediately.
→ Al oír la alarma de incendios, el personal salió del edificio inmediatamente.

2 · -ing: causa y resultado · Present participle: reason and result

Causa (= because, as, since): muy frecuente con verbos de estado como being, knowing, feeling, realising, wanting, having. Resultado (= and so, and as a result): la participial va al final, tras una coma, y su sujeto lógico es toda la oración anterior: …, causing delays, …, leaving thousands without power. Es un recurso típico de las noticias.

Reason: Being / Knowing / Feeling… at the start. Result: …, causing / leaving / making… at the end, after a comma.

Being / Knowing / Feeling + …, + oración principal (causa)

Oración principal, + causing / leaving + … (resultado)

Being the most experienced member of the team, Laura was asked to lead the project.
→ Al ser la integrante con más experiencia del equipo, a Laura le pidieron que dirigiera el proyecto.

Knowing how competitive the market was, they lowered their prices.
→ Sabiendo lo competitivo que era el mercado, bajaron los precios.

The storm brought down power lines, leaving thousands of homes without electricity.
→ La tormenta derribó tendidos eléctricos y dejó a miles de hogares sin luz.

3 · Participio pasado: pasiva · Past participle: passive meaning

Con el participio pasado el sentido es pasivo: el sujeto recibe la acción. Puede expresar causa, tiempo o condición (= if): Used correctly… = If it is used correctly… Funciona como el participio español: Construido en 1890…, Bien utilizado…, Conmocionado por…

Past participle = passive meaning: the subject receives the action. It can express reason, time or condition (= if).

Participio pasado + …, + sujeto + verbo principal

Built in 1890, the bridge is now a protected monument.
→ Construido en 1890, el puente es hoy un monumento protegido.

Used correctly, this software can save hours of work.
→ Bien utilizado, este programa puede ahorrar horas de trabajo.

📖 Explicación · Explanation | Nivel C1

4 · Having + participio · Perfect participle

El perfect participle indica que una acción terminó antes que la principal y, a menudo, que es su causa. Activa: having + participio (Having finished…); pasiva: having been + participio (Having been warned…). Es necesario cuando la primera acción duró un tiempo o cuando sin él la secuencia quedaría confusa: Having lived in Japan for ten years, she speaks fluent Japanese.

Having + past participle = an action completed before the main one (often its cause). Passive: having been + past participle.

Having + participio + …, + oración principal

Having been + participio + …, + oración principal (pasiva)

🎤 Having finished the presentation, she answered questions from the audience.
→ Tras terminar la presentación, respondió a las preguntas del público.

✈️ Having lived abroad for ten years, he found it hard to readapt.
→ Después de haber vivido diez años en el extranjero, le costó readaptarse.

⚠️ Having been warned about the risks, the investors withdrew.
→ Tras haber sido advertidos de los riesgos, los inversores se retiraron.

5 · Negativa y conjunción + participio · Negatives and conjunctions

La negativa se forma con not delante del participio: Not knowing…, Not having read… (nunca ~~don't knowing~~). Podemos conservar una conjunción para mayor claridad: after / before / while / since / when + -ing y when / if / unless / once / although + participio pasado: When asked…, If left untreated…, Once completed… Tras after y before (preposiciones) va -ing, nunca ~~to~~.

Negative: not + participle. Keep a conjunction for clarity: after / while + -ing, when / if / once + past participle.

Not + -ing / having + participio

after / before / while + -ing

when / if / once + participio pasado

✉️ Not having received a reply, I sent a second email.
→ Al no haber recibido respuesta, envié un segundo correo.

🤐 When asked about the merger, the CEO declined to comment.
→ Cuando le preguntaron por la fusión, el consejero delegado declinó hacer comentarios.

🦠 If left untreated, the infection can spread quickly.
→ Si no se trata, la infección puede extenderse rápidamente.

🤝 After signing the contract, both parties shook hands.
→ Tras firmar el contrato, ambas partes se dieron la mano.

PARTICIPLE CLAUSES

Participle clauses · oraciones de participio

📖 Explicación · Explanation | Nivel C1

6 · Relativas reducidas · Reduced relative clauses

Podemos eliminar who / which / that (+ be) y dejar solo el participio: the man (who is) sitting there, the files (which were) sent today, anyone wishing to attend (= who wishes). -ing = activo; -ed = pasivo. Límite importante: -ing no sirve para una acción puntual ya terminada: The man who stole my bag (no ~~The man stealing my bag~~, salvo que la acción esté en curso).

Drop who / which (+ be): the man sitting there, the files sent today. Don't use -ing for a single completed past action.

Nombre + -ing + … (activa: = who / which …)

Nombre + participio pasado + … (pasiva: = who / which is / was …)

Passengers travelling to Paris should go to Gate 12.
→ Los pasajeros que viajen a París deben dirigirse a la puerta 12.

The proposals submitted last week will be reviewed by the committee.
→ El comité revisará las propuestas presentadas la semana pasada.

Anyone wishing to attend the seminar should register online.
→ Quien desee asistir al seminario debe inscribirse en línea.

Truco del sujeto · The subject trick

Antes de escribir una participial, pregúntate «¿quién hace esto?». La respuesta tiene que ser el sujeto que va justo después de la coma: Walking home, I… ✓ / Walking home, the rain… ✗. Recuerda: -ing = hace (activo), -ed = le hacen (pasivo), having + participio = ya lo había hecho. Registro: brillan en informes, noticias y essays; al hablar, because / when suenan más naturales.

Ask «who does this?»: the answer must be the subject right after the comma. -ing = active, -ed = passive, having + past participle = before. Formal writing, not casual speech.

7 · Dangling participles · Dangling participles

Un dangling participle (participio «colgante») es un participio cuyo sujeto implícito no coincide con el de la principal. El resultado es ilógico o cómico: ~~Walking home, the rain started~~ (¿la lluvia caminaba?). Solución: cambia el sujeto de la principal o usa una oración completa. Si el participio tiene otro sujeto, nómbralo (formal): The weather being fine, we ate outside · With prices rising… Excepción: fórmulas fijas como generally speaking, judging by, considering, all things considered.

The implied subject of the participle must be the subject of the main clause. Otherwise, rewrite or name the subject (with prices rising…).

Participio + …, + mismo sujeto + verbo

With + nombre + participio + …, + oración principal

~~Arriving at the hotel, the room was not ready.~~ → Arriving at the hotel, we found that the room was not ready.
→ Al llegar al hotel, vimos que la habitación no estaba lista.

With interest rates rising, many families are struggling to pay their mortgages.
→ Con los tipos de interés subiendo, muchas familias tienen dificultades para pagar la hipoteca.

Historic market reopens after restoration

Built in 1882 and badly damaged by a fire in 2019, the Northbridge Covered Market reopened yesterday after a three-year restoration. Having raised over £12 million from public and private sources, the city council was able to restore the building's original iron structure and stained-glass windows.

Thousands of visitors queued from early morning, causing long delays in the city centre. Stallholders, many of them from families that have worked there for generations, were delighted. "Not knowing whether the market would ever reopen, we spent three very difficult years," said Ana Ruiz, whose fish stall was opened by her grandfather.

Asked about the cost of the project, the mayor said it had been worth every penny. "Restored with care and run by local people, this market is the heart of our city," she said. Visitors wishing to take a guided tour can book online.
