Explicación · Explanation

Lee cada recuadro despacio. Primero en español, luego en inglés. Read each box slowly: first in Spanish, then in English.

¿Qué es? · What is it?

En B1 viste will y going to. En C1 el futuro se vuelve más preciso: nos situamos en un punto concreto del futuro y miramos qué estará pasando (future continuous), qué habrá terminado (future perfect) o cuánto tiempo llevará ocurriendo algo (future perfect continuous). Además, el inglés tiene expresiones para lo inminente o programado (be about to, be due to, be on the point of) y formas para hablar del futuro visto desde el pasado (was going to, would, was to), imprescindibles en narración y en registro formal.

At C1 the future becomes more precise: we stand at a point in the future and look at what will be in progress, what will have finished, or how long something will have been going on. We also express imminence and schedules, and the future seen from the past.

will be + -ing → en curso will have + participio → terminado

will have been + -ing → duración

1 · Future continuous · Actions in progress in the future

Se forma con will be + -ing. Lo usamos para: (a) una acción en curso en un momento concreto del futuro (this time tomorrow, at 9 tonight); (b) algo que ocurrirá en el curso normal de los acontecimientos, sin intención especial (I'll be seeing him at the conference anyway); (c) preguntar con cortesía por los planes de alguien: Will you be using the car tonight? suena más educado que Will you use…?, que puede sonar a petición o a presión.

will be + -ing: an action in progress at a future moment; something that will happen in the normal course of events; polite questions about someone's plans.

Sujeto + will be + verbo-ing

Sujeto + won't be + verbo-ing

Will + sujeto + be + verbo-ing…?

This time next week I'll be lying on a beach in Menorca.
→ La semana que viene a estas horas estaré tumbado en una playa de Menorca.

Don't ring at eight — we'll be having dinner.
→ No llames a las ocho: estaremos cenando.

→ ¿Vas a usar la sala de reuniones esta tarde? (pregunta cortés)

I'll be passing the chemist's anyway — shall I pick up your prescription?
→ Voy a pasar por la farmacia de todos modos: ¿te recojo la receta?

2 · Future perfect simple · Completed before a future point

Se forma con will have + participio. Expresa una acción que estará terminada antes de un momento del futuro. Casi siempre va con by (para, como muy tarde): by Friday, by then, by the end of the year, by the time + presente. Ojo: by marca un límite, mientras que until marca duración (hasta). También sirve para hacer suposiciones sobre el presente: You'll have heard the news (ya te habrás enterado).

will have + past participle: completed before a point in the future, usually with by. It can also express an assumption about the present: You'll have heard the news.

Sujeto + will have + participio

Sujeto + won't have + participio

Will + sujeto + have + participio…?

By the time you read this email, I'll have left the company.
→ Para cuando leas este correo, ya habré dejado la empresa.

The committee won't have reached a decision by Monday.
→ El comité no habrá tomado una decisión para el lunes.

Will they have finished the renovation before the summer?
→ ¿Habrán terminado la reforma antes del verano?

You'll have heard that Marta has been promoted.
→ Ya te habrás enterado de que han ascendido a Marta.

3 · Future perfect continuous · Duration up to a future point

Se forma con will have been + -ing. Pone el foco en la duración de una actividad hasta un momento del futuro, normalmente con for + periodo. En español solemos decir llevaré… años o haré… que. Recuerda: los verbos de estado (know, own, believe, be) no van en forma continua: By June I'll have known her for twenty years.

will have been + -ing: focuses on duration up to a future point, typically with for. State verbs use the future perfect simple instead.

Sujeto + will have been + verbo-ing + for + periodo

Next month I'll have been working here for a decade.
→ El mes que viene llevaré una década trabajando aquí.

By the time we land, we'll have been travelling for almost twenty hours.
→ Cuando aterricemos, llevaremos casi veinte horas viajando.

4 · Inminente o previsto · Imminent or scheduled be about to + infinitivo = estar a punto de: algo inminente. No admite expresiones de tiempo (~~about to leave in two hours~~), pero sí just: I was just about to ring you. be on the point of + -ing significa lo mismo con un tono más formal o dramático. be on the verge / brink of + nombre o -ing = al borde de (crisis, éxito, extinción). be due to + infinitivo = estar previsto según un horario o calendario; sí admite hora o fecha. En prensa verás be set to (se prevé que) y be to (está previsto que, anuncios oficiales).

be about to (imminent, no time expression), be on the point of + -ing (more formal), be on the verge of (on the edge of), be due to (scheduled, takes a time), be set to / be to (news and official announcements).

5 · El futuro visto desde el pasado · Future in the past

Cuando narramos o contamos lo que alguien pensaba, el futuro retrocede: will → would, am going to → was going to, is about to → was about to. was/were going to se usa mucho para planes que no se cumplieron (iba a…, pero). En narración formal, was/were to + infinitivo expresa el destino, lo que acabaría pasando (llegaría a…), y was/were to have + participio, un plan frustrado (tenía que haber…).

In narratives the future shifts back: would, was going to, was about to. Was going to often signals an unfulfilled plan. Formal narrative: was to (destiny) and was to have + participle (a plan that did not happen).

was / were going to + infinitivo (…but) would + infinitivo (narración)

was / were to + infinitivo (destino)

I was going to email you, but the server went down.
→ Iba a escribirte un correo, pero se cayó el servidor.

She knew that the decision would change her life.
→ Sabía que la decisión le cambiaría la vida.

We were about to leave when the client called.

→ Llegaría a ser uno de los mejores arquitectos de su generación.

The bridge was to have opened in 2020, but funding ran out.
→ El puente tenía que haberse inaugurado en 2020, pero se acabó la financiación.

Expresiones de inminencia y previsión · Imminence and schedules

Expresión	Significado	Registro	Ejemplo
be about to	a punto de	neutro	The meeting is about to start.
be just about to	justo a punto de	neutro, oral	I was just about to call you!
be on the point of + -ing	a punto de	formal / dramático	She was on the point of resigning.
be on the verge of	al borde de	neutro / formal	The species is on the verge of extinction.
be on the brink of	al borde de (crisis, hito)	formal, periodístico	The country is on the brink of recession.
be due to	previsto (horario)	neutro / formal	The flight is due to land at 10.15.
be set to	se prevé que	periodístico	Prices are set to rise again.
be to + infinitivo	está previsto / orden oficial	muy formal	The minister is to step down.

Cuidado: due to + infinitivo = previsto (The train is due to arrive), pero due to + nombre = debido a (The delay was due to fog).

due to + infinitive = scheduled; due to + noun = because of.

¿Se cumplió o no? · Did it actually happen?

En el futuro en el pasado, la estructura elegida suele indicar si el plan se cumplió o se quedó en nada.

The structure often tells us whether the plan came true.

❌ No se cumplió

Conector	Tras el conector	Oración principal	Ejemplo
when	presente simple	will / future continuous	When you arrive, we'll be waiting for you.
by the time	presente simple	future perfect	By the time she retires, she'll have taught for 40 years.
as soon as / once	present perfect (acción acabada)	will	Once we've signed the contract, we'll announce it.
until / before	presente simple	will / won't	We won't know until the results come out.
after	present perfect	will	After you've read it, you'll understand.

Error típico por calco del subjuntivo español (cuando llegues, para cuando termine): ~~When you will arrive~~ → When you arrive. Tampoco ~~when I will have finished~~ → when I've finished.

Never use will (or will have) after time conjunctions: use the present or present perfect.

Countdown to the new Science Museum

When the new Science Museum opens its doors in September, it will have been under construction for almost seven years. The project was originally due to open in 2024, but, as it turned out, the opening was to be postponed twice. At one stage the council was on the point of cancelling the scheme altogether.

Now the end is finally in sight. By the end of this month, the builders will have installed the last of the glass panels, and in July the curators will be moving more than 10,000 objects into the galleries. "We're about to enter the most exciting phase," says the director, Helen Marsh. "By opening day, my team will have been working on the exhibitions for over three years."

Not everyone is impressed. Critics point out that, by the time the museum opens, the budget will have doubled. Marsh, however, remains confident: "I always knew this project would be difficult. But in twenty years' time, nobody will be talking about the delays – they'll be talking about the museum."
